Sen. Sanborn still Michigan Senate's most conservative

LANSING – The respected, Lansing-based political newsletter Inside Michigan Politics again has listed Sen. Alan Sanborn, R-Richmond Township, as the state Senate's most conservative member, showing the senator's commitment to low taxes, job creation, the Second Amendment and traditional values.

"The residents of northern Macomb County expect the people they send to Lansing to reflect their principles," Sanborn said. "That's what foremost in my mind as I review legislation and push for action on the issues that matter locally."

Sanborn also has been listed previously as the Senate's most conservative member by Michigan Information & Research Service, another state Capitol newsletter.

The 11th Senate District, which Sanborn represents, comprises Mount Clemens, New Baltimore, Richmond and the Macomb County portion of Memphis, as well as Armada, Bruce, Chesterfield, Harrison, Lenox, Macomb, Ray, Richmond, Shelby and Washington townships.
